REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONS ON MOTION TO APPEAL IN FORMA
*PAUPERIS

This case is before the Court on Plaintiff's Motion for Leave to Appeal in forma pauperis (Doc. No. 11).

The Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals requires that all district courts in the Circuit determine, in all cases where the appellant seeks to proceed in forma pauperis, whether the appeal is frivolous. Floyd v. United States Postal Service, 105 F.3d 274 (6th Cir. 1997).

28 U.S.C. §1915(a)(3) provides that "[a]n appeal may not be taken in forma pauperis if the trial court certifies in writing that it is not taken in good faith."

Plaintiff was granted leave to proceed in forma pauperis in this Court, but that determination is not conclusive, since the appeal involves a separate proceeding. Slack v. McDaniel, 120 S. Ct. 1595 (2000); Spruill v. Temple Baptist Church, 141 F.2d 137, 138 (D.C. Cir.1944). If the party was permitted to proceed in forma pauperis in the district court, the party may proceed on appeal in forma pauperis without further authorization unless the district court certifies in writing that an appeal would not be taken in good faith, or the party is not otherwise entitled to proceed as a pauper.

See Fed. R.App. P. 24(a)(3). If the district court denies the individual leave to proceed in forma pauperis on appeal, the party may file, within thirty days after service of the district court's decision as prescribed for by Fed. R.App. P. 24(a)(4), a motion with the Court of Appeals for leave to proceed as a pauper on appeal. The party's motion must include a copy of the affidavit filed in the district court and the district court's statement as to its reasons for denying pauper status on appeal. See Fed. R.App. P. 24(a)(5). Callihan v. Schneider, 178 F.3d 800, 803 (6th Cir. 1999), holding Floyd v. United States Postal Service, 105 F.3d 274 (6th Cir. 1997), superseded in part by 1998 amendments to Fed. R.App. P. 24.

The test under §1915(a) for whether an appeal is taken in good faith is whether the litigant seeks appellate review of any issue not frivolous. Coppedge v. United States, 369 U.S. 438, 445-46, 82 S. Ct. 917, 8 L. Ed. 2d 21 (1962). Thus an appellant's good faith subjective motivation for appealing is not relevant, but rather whether, objectively speaking, there is any non-frivolous issue to be litigated on appeal. This test will often be difficult to apply in any conclusive manner at the district court level because only a bare notice of appeal is before the District Court; it will often be unable to evaluate the issues appellant intends to raise on appeal because the appellant has no occasion to reveal those issues in a notice of appeal.

In dismissing the Complaint herein, District Judge Rice has already denied Plaintiff leave to proceed in forma pauperis on appeal. Nothing in the instant Motion suggests that decision should be reconsidered. While Plaintiff has shown he is unable to pay the filing fee, he has not stated an appealable issues. For example, he claims “judicial conflict of interest,” but gives no indication what he is referring to; he never asked that either of the judicial officers involved with this case recuse themselves. He states he wants to raise the issue of contributory negligence of the State of Wisconsin and the United States Department of Justice, but neither of those entities is a party. At item 7, he notes his intention to raise an issue of the “relevance of the word ‘under.’” Relevance to what?

It is accordingly respectfully recommended that the Court deny the Application to Appeal in forma pauperis and certify to the Court of Appeals that the appeal is not taken in objective good faith.
